

Relevance of Remembering and Moving Forward

Discussion with Survivors of 9/11 and the 3/11 Japan Triple Disaster

After the March 2011 triple disaster in Fukushima Japan, survivors of New York City's September 11 attacks traveled to Fukushima with a crane made out of steel recovered from the World Trade Center.

Every year since, the International Outreach for 9/11 to 3/11 Survivor Exchange Program has brought 9/11 and 3/11 survivors together to exchange stories, discuss strategies for resilience, and learn from one another.

In honor of the 20th anniversary of 9/11, please join survivors of both disasters for a discussion on the relevance of remembrance and moving forward.
